

Henry Gardner Called By Death at Spanish Fork

Retired Business Man, Prominent State Leader, and Church Man Dies.

SPANISH FORK — Henry Gardner, 78, retired business man, former president of the Utah state senate, and recognized as the father of the Strawberry reclamation project, died at the family home Monday following a long illness.

He had been in failing health for eight years, but his condition was aggravated a month ago when he fell and broke his hip, since which time he has been confined to his bed.

He was a native of Spanish Fork, the son of Archibald and Serena Garson Gardner, early pioneers. He was born March 22, 1850. He received his education in the public schools, later attending the Brigham Young university at Provo. He filled many positions of trust and honor.

During his early manhood he worked with his father who operated cotton mills in Cottonwood canyon and other parts of Utah. He married Elizabeth Martell, March 22, 1882, in the St. George L. D. S. temple. She died March 27, 1915.

After his marriage Mr. Gardner made his home at Spanish Fork and took an active part in all community activities. He engaged in ranching and stockraising and was connected with practically all the enterprises in the growing town. He was a stockholder and director of the Commercial bank for many years. He managed and operated several sawmills, and conducted a lumber business known as the ~~Chisholf and Gardner Lumber~~ company. He sawed much of the wood used to line the Strawberry tunnel.

Mr. Gardner conceived the idea of making a tunnel and bringing the Strawberry river to Spanish Fork and Payson, he made many trips to the Strawberry basin and worked indefatigably until the great project was finally accomplished. He was familiarly called the father of the Strawberry reclamation project.

In politics he was a staunch Republican. He was elected to represent his county in both the house of representatives and in the state senate. He served 14 years in the two houses. He presided as president of the senate twice and was honored by Republicans and Democrats alike for his fair dealing. He served as mayor, as coun-
